

Call for Applications: Fellow of the JNIS

The JNIS is seeking one national and one international neurointerventionalist or neurointerventionalist-in-training to join the editorial board as a member of the Social Media team. In this role, candidates would provide JNIS article reviews and post those on Social Media as well as on SNIS connect on a voluntary basis. The purpose of this engagement is to increase the number of people who will disseminate scientifically sound research bites with reference to full articles on Social Media. Candidates would be expected to post 3-4 SNIS connect reviews of JNIS articles on a monthly basis. Those posts would be reviewed by the Social Media editors. Obviously, candidates are expected to be active participants on Social Media. Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, and Instagram accounts are a prerequisite as is membership in the SNIS. Content should be focused on scientific and evidence-based information published in either the print or online editions of the JNIS. In addition, candidates would serve as a “Social Media Journalist” during the SNIS annual meeting with the responsibility of providing Social Media-appropriate summaries of the daily presentations. Interested candidates can apply by sending their CV and a sample review of a JNIS article of their choice in the style of previous SNIS connect submissions. The term is one year.

Please send applications to: jmcalpine@bmj.com by March 31st 2021